

FIREFIGHTING IS RESPONSIBILITY

COMPANY MISSION

fire fighting is responsibility. AQUASYS is for more than 25 years an internationally leading developer, manufacturer and supplier of firefighting systems and water hydraulic driven systems, as well as process-related spray and atomisation systems based in Linz, Austria. Our focus is on establishing and sharing the benefits of high-pressure water mist for protecting human beings, products and availability.

We supply as an independent system house high-quality systems for planners, manufacturers and operators of buildings and transport infrastructure, machines and plants as well as rail and special-purpose vehicles.

Extensive expertise in systems engineering, simulations and life cycle costs as well as quality, project and process management are complemented by our first-rate manufacturing, assembly and service capacities. The individual analysis of customer applications allows us to provide competent advice and cost-optimised solutions.

We also maintain close contact with partners from research as well as fire brigades and fire safety institutes, and are constantly taking on new technological challenges.

As part of an owner-operated group of companies, we are a reliable, flexible and innovative partner.
